Thief Flees With $46 After Victim Screams

Two Central Intelligence Agency clerks were assaulted early yesterday by a robber who broke into their Georgetown apartment.

Gloria J. Palmer, 32, of 1311 24th st. nw., told police she was awakened by a man who clamped his hand over her mouth and ordered: "Don't scream, don't move, remember Miss Lockwood."

Frances Lockwood is still in critical condition in Washington Hospital Center after being found beaten in her apartment at 1711 Massachusetts ave. nw. last April.

Miss Palmer then screamed and the intruder released his grip and ran into a hallway where he met a roommate, Constance Walsh, 38.

Miss Walsh was pushed against a wall as the man fled.

Police said a wallet containing $46 was missing from Miss Palmer's purse.

The women described the attacker as a Negro, 6 feet, 5
